

ART DRUCKENMILLER

Good Morning on Resurrection Morning 2014.

Sun, Apr 20, 2014 at 6:55 AM

Jesus said, "I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness, but will have the light of life." John 8:12 (NIV)

I remember being at a conference in a large arena some years ago, where the speaker wanted to make the point that the smallest amount of light penetrates the darkness. He had arranged for all lights to be turned out, and then for someone in a strategic spot in the arena to strike a match. The small light had an immediate affect on the darkness.

In a conversation on my trip to Cuba last month, Dwayne Bell*, a brother on the trip, quoted the saying, "Light a candle; don't waste time and energy cursing the darkness."

Jesus, in His coming, suffering, death and resurrection, lit the one eternal candle for all creation for all eternity. The Son of God giving of Himself as the sacrifice to settle the universal debt of all mankind brings light to every person.

Until the King returns, there will be darkness in the world. Our daily opportunity: To light a candle to make a difference for someone every day.

Hope your day is grand. Art

*Dwayne Bell is a retired aviator, both the Air Force and the airlines, from Ft. Smith, Arkansas, who has written the book "A Friend of the King, David and His Mighty Men", a book calling men to our high calling, available at Dwayne's website, www.afriendoftheking.com.

If you ever wonder why you are on this email distribution and want to get off, just let me know. I will be prompt in honoring your request.